

H27 Deleted from Product Offering

Effective January 1, 2007, the H27 heavy duty floor closer will no longer be available for purchase.

When heavy or high traffic doors need a floor closing device, the L27 model should be used.

For outstanding quotations for this product, furnish the L27, instead. The prices for the two models have been the same for some time. After January 1, if templates have been sent to the door and frame manufacturers but, material has not been ordered, contact the factory for resolution.

Supplying the L27 gives the building owner a sturdier product for the same amount of money.

If you have additional questions, regarding this change please contact your local ASSA ABLOY Door Security Solution sales agency.
